February 2015

February 3rd Garden Club Meeting

Guest Speaker - David Johnson

Brought to us by the Brereton Field Naturalists Club,
who will be joining us for
Flying Flowers & Moths

What is the difference a Butterfly and a Moth??

Butterflies are mostly brightly colored day-flying insects with long clubbed antennae and most moths fly at night and lack clubs at the end of their antennae

Come out and enjoy a day with your fellow Hostaholics!

Treat your backyard birds this year!

Black oil sunflower seed or blends that are high in black oil sunflower seeds are excellent choices. They provide the nutrients birds need and attract a wide variety of birds. You can also put out other food sources that are high in fat. These include suet, meat scraps and peanut butter. The latter, despite what some might tell you, won't cause birds to choke. When you're at the grocery, pick up a bag of raw peanuts in the shell. It's fun to watch birds such as blue jays swoop down, carry them off to a tree branch, and peck at them to get the tasty reward inside!
